

Report Number: 34

SEN: Severe Learning Difficulty

EHCP REPORT #34

Section A:

[Name] is a happy, energetic 6-year-old boy who enjoys sensory play, particularly water and sand activities. He is motivated by cause-and-effect toys and music. His parents aspire for him to develop functional communication skills to express his needs and to gain independence in self-care tasks. They hope he will build meaningful friendships with his peers and feel confident in his school environment.

Section B:

[Name] has a Severe Learning Difficulty (SLD). He experiences significant delays in all areas of cognitive development. He requires high levels of support to access the curriculum, process information, and engage in learning tasks. He has limited verbal communication and relies on non-verbal cues and visual supports to understand his environment.

Section C:

[Name] has no specific medical diagnoses. He requires support with fine and gross motor coordination and needs supervision to ensure his physical safety during unstructured times.

Section D:

[Name] requires support to develop social interaction skills. He needs adult guidance to navigate play with peers and to manage transitions between activities to prevent frustration.

Section E:

1. Communication: [Name] will use a functional communication system (e.g., PECS or symbols) to express his basic needs and preferences in 4 out of 5 opportunities.
2. Independence: [Name] will independently complete a 3-step self-care routine (e.g., washing hands) with minimal adult prompting.
3. Social: [Name] will engage in parallel play alongside a peer for 10 minutes with adult facilitation.

Section F:

- A highly structured, sensory-based curriculum delivered in a small group setting.
- Daily access to speech and language therapy strategies integrated into classroom activities.
- Use of visual timetables, "now and next" boards, and symbol-based communication aids.
- High staff-to-pupil ratio to provide 1:1 support for academic tasks and safety.
- Regular occupational therapy input to support motor development and sensory regulation.

Section G:

- Annual review of physical development and motor skills by a school-based physiotherapist or occupational therapist.
- Staff training on supporting [Name]'s sensory regulation needs.

Section H1:

- Provision of short-break services to support family wellbeing and provide [Name] with opportunities for community-based social interaction.

Section H2:

- Access to local authority-funded transport to and from the non-maintained special school.

Section I:

[Name] will attend a non-maintained special school that specializes in Severe Learning Difficulties, providing a low-arousal environment and a curriculum tailored to his developmental stage.

Section J:

A personal budget is not requested at this time; all provision is met through the school's core funding and commissioned services.

Section K:

- Educational Psychologist Report (dated [Date])
- Speech and Language Therapy Assessment (dated [Date])
- Parental/Carer views (dated [Date])
- School progress reports and observations (dated [Date])
